

ALPHACLOUD CLOUD-BASED SERVICE IN AI TRADING

London Analytics have launched the cloud version of its proved AI trading models which analyses the market in real-time. Our AlphaCloud platform generates investing strategies and stock/crypto signals for funds and investing platforms to operate in highly volatile markets.

Our clients can easily connect to our secure cloud environment for receiving investing strategies and stock signals in real-time without having to develop hard-to-build investing algorithms by themselves.

London Analytics also offer investment portfolios for various global markets. You can now select a desired portfolio from our AlphaCloud platform that matches all your required investment characteristics, and enables live trading from your personal account.

The AlphaCloud offers a wide range of exchanges, brokerages and trading platforms on the world market to enable live trading. Using the AlphaCloud platform you have access to all global markets: Forex, stocks and cryptocurrencies.

All trading actions are performed through our secure API interface, meaning only you have access to your trading account, transactions and withdrawals.

Funds can have access to individualised strategies, worldwide, reducing the need to build and maintain a team of expensive and scarce trading data scientists. Furthermore, AlphaCloud is customisable. It allows us to tailor the AI/ML algorithms to your specific preferences, generating new strategies and portfolios driven by your demands.

The AlphaCloud AI/ML models can reshape portfolios in an automated way, executing market orders within both the market context and the selected strategy. If needed, it can change the strategy rapidly to follow the main goal - to make profit or prevent loss. It can react to the market's volatility in a split second.

If you're interested in a secure, customisable platform to operate the market to select investment portfolio, enable/disable trading on account, manage trading accounts, receive reports and statistics with access to leading global markets, then get in touch with us at contact@londonanalytics.com. Our team of experts will be delighted to guide you through our proprietary AlphaCloud technologies, so you can decide how best we can meet your needs.

